HELPING SURVIVORS ACHIEVE SAFETY & STABILITY

A continuing trend that we have seen for the last several years is the increasing number of ancillary needs that survivors and their children have which are no longer able to be met by other segments of the human services system due to budget cuts. Domestic violence counselors will advocate on behalf of survivors to help them obtain other services, but in some cases the domestic violence organization will pay to have the need met. These needs all contribute to the overall safety and stability of the survivor and children, but often extend far beyond the funding available to domestic violence organizations.

ACCESS TO SAFE, AFFORDABLE HOUSING

remains one of the greatest needs facing survivors and their children.

TRANSITIONAL LIVING PROGRAM (TLP) is AFFORDABLE HOUSING that provides survivors with critical support, such as connections to healthcare and employment services, all while maintaining a consistent connection for the survivor with the local domestic violence organization. Many survivors in need of housing assistance are facing POVERTY - TLP provides a means for them to achieve ECONOMIC STABILITY, which in turn increases their SAFETY.
